2008 Koi Season...Has Begun!

As most koi hobbyist are getting anxious for the koi season to begin, so are we! Mud ponds are being tilled, filled and strung in preparation of receiving the koi for their summer growing. The older koi in the greenhouses have been growing nicely on their automatic feeders and are sorted as who gets to spend the summer in the mud ponds. Last years efforts have not disappointed us as the final tategoi tosai have been select to grow on. We are already anticipating the harvest results of these fantastic tosai, but there a lot to be done until then...

Breeding parents are being selected, a little tweaking each year helps us continuously raise our standards of the koi we are breeding. The females and males are being prepped for their big job ahead. We have one shot at the "A" team each season and the success each pair sets the tone for the entire season.

Thru the winter while the koi got some R and R in large, warm greenhouse, not having to beg for a meal, we stayed busy with new building projects, shows, lectures and our first winter events on the farm. Our retail customers got a day of hands on learning about how to select tosai tategoi. While our wholesale clients got a one on one class on how to improve koi health, filtration and the benefits of American Bred Koi.

The summer season will keep us just as busy. Opening the season up with our annual 555 Event in May. Our first Tosai Event in June, for koi to be grown in hobbyist ponds. We will be attending a number of shows and are happy to be hosting koi club meetings right here on the farm.

We hope you will be joining us for all the excitement in the 2008 season.

*We will be open to the public beginning May 3rd— Saturdays 10-3pm and Sundays 12-3pm.

May 5th—Annual 555 Event

After a very successful 2007 breeding season, we are delighted to present this year's 555 Tategoi Tosai. This year all of the koi offered are from our number one go-sanke parents. The Showa and Utsuri are from our "Big Mama," the Sanke are all from the Magoi bloodline "Rental Sanke," and the Kohaku are all offspring of our company mascot, "Yuri."

The quality of koi offered in this year's 555 event are the best ever in terms of beni and sumi quality and truly represent some of the best tategoi that we made last year. The higher priced koi that we have offered this year are the absolute pinnacle of combined qualities amongst all the offspring from these great females. Be ready at 8.00am on Monday May 5th to purchase your favorite high class Tategoi.
